OVERVIEW

Background

The mission of the Baton Rouge Area Chamber (BRAC) is to lead economic development in the nine-parish Capital Region. As part of this work, BRAC developed this Short-Term Training Resource Guide for the benefit of job seekers and employers. This guide provides an in-depth listing of career and technical education providers and programs. It does not include every training course on offer, but focuses on growing sectors that provide high-wage careers.

Since the arrival of the COVID-19 pandemic in Louisiana, many people have become ill and many businesses have closed. At its peak, unemployment reached nearly 60,000 workers in the Baton Rouge Area who lost their jobs. As the threat of the virus subsides, consumer confidence will improve. Businesses will reopen, but many workers' old jobs may not be available. Jobseekers can gain new skills through training to find a job in a different industry. This resource guide offers an overview of these training options.

A Changing Landscape

Before the crisis, agribusiness, petrochemical, industrial construction, and engineering were among Louisiana's strongest growing industries. The pandemic has changed the economic landscape, and the highest demand for skilled workers has shifted to other industries. Now, jobs are available in technology, healthcare and business. With less than a year of new education and training, a person can move out of unemployment into a promising career. Opportunities also exist in the fields of trade & construction, law, and digital art & design.

Knowledge of growing industries and in-demand skills will help jobseekers choose the right training program. More than half of the 1,400+ job postings on BRAC's Capital Region job board, BR Works, are for office management and administrative positions. Sales occupations, customer service representative positions, and healthcare jobs are also available. These jobs require skills in management, communication, customer service and technology.

Louisiana's Efforts

In response to the current economic crisis, the Louisiana Community and Technical College System created a program, Reboot Your Career, to connect unemployed workers with short-term training. Many of the trainings in this document could be taken via the Reboot program for little to no cost. Ten million dollars in Federal funds will be used to train 5,000 Louisianans in short-term, high-demand programs. The program gives workers the opportunity to reenter the workforce at a better place than they started. Learn more at <https://www.lctcs.edu/rebootyourcareer>.

People seeking work can also contact one of the Capital Region's two workforce development centers - EmployBR (in EBR) or Geaux Jobs (in the surrounding parishes) - to be matched with training and job opportunities. The East Baton Rouge Parish Library offers computer access and support for jobseekers. If money is a challenge to accessing training, people interested in short-term training programs should contact the training providers for more information on financial assistance and should seek low-cost or free opportunities through Reboot.

TRAINING DIRECTORY

This guide provides an in-depth listing of career and technical education providers and programs. It does not include every training course on offer, but focuses on growing sectors that provide high-wage careers. Costs are approximate; training providers may offer financial assistance.

Programs listed here can:

- be completed in under 12 weeks*
- culminate in a credential or prepare the student to take a certification exam
- be taken regardless of prior experience (no pre-requisites)

*Note: This listing assumes that, if a course length is defined by number of hours, then courses totaling 480 hours and under can be completed in 12 weeks (40 hours per week).

TECHNOLOGY

With a sudden and widespread shift to remote work across all industries, the existing demand for technology specialists has only intensified. Many of these jobs require minimal prior experience in the field for those who secure a training credential like those listed below. The training courses listed here can be taken by people with no prior education or training in this topic area. Capital Region tech sector executives report that the most valuable short-term trainings include AWS, CISCO CCNA, CompTIA (A+, Network+, Security+), Help Desk Analyst, and Certified Information Systems Security Professional.

TRADE & CONSTRUCTION

Though construction demand has declined during the COVID-19 pandemic, Capital Region construction firms report an expected rebound due to major upcoming transportation and infrastructure projects, like those that are part of Baton Rouge’s major transportation construction plan, MovEBR. Job opportunities may also arise out of recovery efforts brought on by Hurricane Laura.

It is a free public service offering with trained help and extensive resources to identify your needs while planning a career path.

TYPES OF TRAINING

Not all training courses result in the same endorsement or documentation. These different outcomes show your level of job readiness to an employer. Here are some important terms to know when exploring career and technical training.

Credential

Credential is a general term. It describes the many types of training outcomes. These outcomes include licensure, certification, accreditation, recognition designation, and certificates.

Industry-based Credential (IBC)

Industry-based credentials certify that individuals have mastered specific skills to be effective employees. Industry leaders create these credentials. Because of this, businesses tend to trust that IBC holders will have the right knowledge for the job at hand.

Click the link to find more information on Louisiana Industry-Based Certification (IBC) State Focus areas, http://www.laworks.net/Downloads/PR/WIC/IBC_StateFocusList.pdf.

Certification

Certification verifies a person's skills through an exam or other testing method. Certification is voluntary, but it is often critical to attainment of a quality job.

Certificate

Individuals can earn a certificate for attending or participating in a course or training program. Unlike certification, earning a certificate does not require a test to prove mastery of the subject.

Course

Not all training options lead to a credential. Courses can be stacked to earn a credential such as a certification. Contact individual training providers to explore how coursework can lead to a credential.

Registered Apprenticeship

A registered apprenticeship connects employers looking for qualified workers with jobseekers looking to learn new skills. Apprentices gain hands-on experience in a wage-earning job, as well as classroom training. Apprentices receive a nationally recognized credential to showcase their skills in their industry.

Associate Degree

An associate degree is awarded after a course of study lasting two or three years. It is a level of qualification between a high school diploma or GED and a bachelor's degree. This document does not cover associate degree programs due to their multi-year timeframe. Those interested in pursuing an associate degree may contact the institutions listed on this page.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What are the benefits of enrolling in a training program?

The short-term training options available through Capital Region educational institutions will prepare you to secure a career in established and emerging high-wage industries. The Louisiana Association of Career and Technical Education highlights success stories here.

Which industries have a high demand for workers?

Nationally, healthcare occupations are projected to grow 14% by 2028, adding almost 2 million new jobs. Many of the almost 17.2 million workers employed in infrastructure jobs are nearing retirement, creating a gap in the workforce. (Source)

Other areas of projected growth, and industries with immediate workforce demands due to COVID-19, include transportation and logistics, information technology, manufacturing, and customer service.

How much do courses cost? How can I pay for training?

The cost of every program ranges. Contact the educational provider whose program you're interested in to find out what financial options are available to you.

Does the state of Louisiana help support individuals seeking training to change careers?

Various financial assistance programs exist to support individuals seeking career training. The Louisiana Career and Technical Colleges System launched the Reboot Your Career program plan to train 5,000 workers in 2021 at little to no cost. The Louisiana Workforce Commission runs Apprenticeship LA, placing workers in wage-earning jobs while undertaking classroom training. Local workforce development boards (see EmployBR and Geaux Jobs, above) offer a variety of incentive programs that relieve the cost burden of training.
